THE COLLEGE OF EUROPE: EDUCATION BEYOND FRONTIERS

The College of Europe, with its two campuses (Bruges, founded in 1949 and Natolin in 1992), is the oldest institute of postgraduate studies focusing on the European construction.

This construction has changed – and keeps changing – the history of a whole continent, the lives of hundreds of millions of European citizens and Europe’s role in the world. Ever since its foundation at the very start of it, the College of Europe has had the mission to make well selected postgraduate students understand the political, legal, economic and international core issues, challenges and potentials of this unique process. This not for art’s sake, but to prepare them for leadership functions requiring a strategic understanding of European issues.

The College fulfills this function by constantly adapting its programmes and the composition of its teaching faculty to European developments, by challenging its students’ minds with the different perspectives of senior academics and practitioners from over twenty-five different countries and numerous professional backgrounds, and by providing them with a very special – and intense – experience of living and working together in an international social and cultural context. If you wish to understand Europe, live it and prepare for a career transcending national borders then the College of Europe should be your choice.

The College of Europe in Natolin is located in Warsaw, the capital of the largest EU member state in East Central Europe. It was established in anticipation of the eastern enlargement of the EU, and today it specializes in the study of new developments in the European Union, its relations with its nearest neighbours and recent European history.

Our advanced Master of Arts in European Interdisciplinary Studies responds to the need for experts in European integration processes and EU external relations who can provide imaginative responses to complex national, regional and global challenges. Students are trained to think beyond disciplinary boundaries while gaining in-depth knowledge in EU public affairs and policies, external relations, the EU’s neighbourhood and European history and civilization. In short, we aim to provide a 360° view of Europe and its place in the world.

Our objective is to educate cross-cultural communicators, innovative negotiators, administrators, analysts, researchers and leaders with multidisciplinary and contextual, regional and international expertise. This advanced Master of Arts prepares graduates for the international, European and national public sectors, as well as the non-governmental and private sectors and may also serve as a step towards a PhD. All our graduates can also draw on a supportive and extensive alumni network.

Applications are invited from students holding (or about to achieve) a good Master’s degree (in some countries rules differ – please check our website).

Natolin students are often graduates in Economics, Law or Political Science, but we also welcome graduates in History, Communication Studies, Journalism, Languages, Philosophy, Philology and, more exceptionally, in other unrelated subjects if students show high interest in our offer.

The working languages are English and French – applicants should normally have a B2 minimum level for one working language and an A2 minimum level for the other.

Applications for the following academic year open in November and usually close in the middle of January.

Selection interviews take place between March and May.
Every year, approximately 70% of our students are granted full or partial scholarships. Scholarships are normally awarded according to the final ranking of the candidates. Preselected candidates will be informed about the scholarship decisions as soon as possible after the selection interviews have taken place.

The College of Europe in Natolin offers the scholarship schemes described in this leaflet, thanks to support from the European Union. As an alternative to our own scholarship schemes, students may be granted scholarships by their respective governments or by public or private institutions. For further information about governmental scholarships and other scholarship schemes, please visit our website.
